How can a disability affect your business revenue and profits?

When an illness or injury prevents you, another owner, or a key employee from working, a few things can happen to your business. Don't worry, we can help you and them prepare for the unexpected.

Business expenses to consider during a disability

If you were unable to work, how would you continue to pay these monthly expenses?

Building expenses

- Rent or mortgage (interest and principal)
- Property tax
- Equipment leasing
- Security and maintenance

Utilities

- Electricity
- Telephone

Other expenses

- Business-related loans
- Insurance premiums (property, malpractice, fire, etc.)
- Accounting, billing and collection fees
- Subscriptions and membership dues
- Salary for your replacement

Keeping your business open

What key employees are critical to your business success?

If you or any of your top talent become too sick or hurt to work, it could impact the future of your business, as well as your or their financial future without an income.

Tom, co-owner

Jerrod, sales representative

Jill, office manager

Does your buy-sell agreement protect you during these planned and unplanned events?

Death

What is the plan if you or another owner dies?

Disability

What would happen to your business if you or another owner becomes too sick or hurt to work?

Divorce

If you or another owner becomes divorced, would the spouse be able to be a partial owner?

Departure

What is the plan if you or another owner decides to leave the business? What would the sale price be? Who would buy it?

Offer your employees income protection at a discount

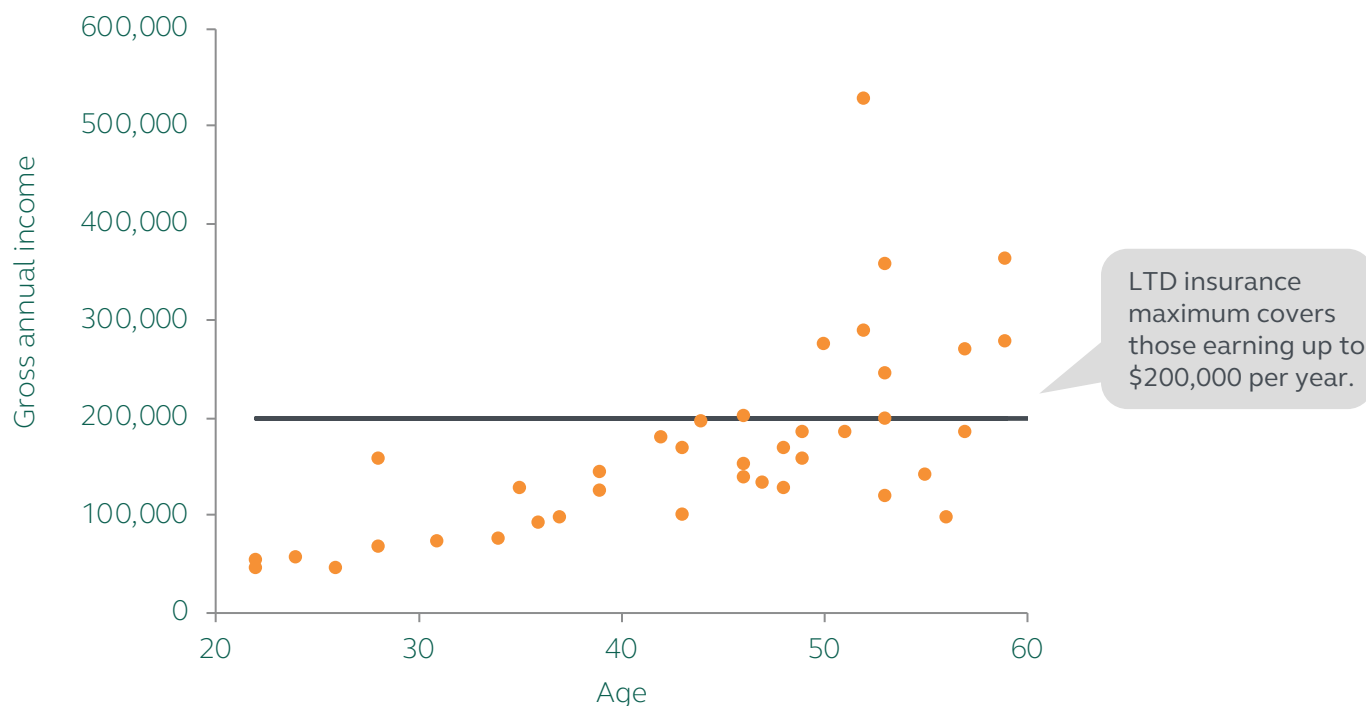

When 3 or more of your employees purchase individual Disability Income insurance, they each receive a 20% discount.³ This coverage can be used as an employee benefit and paid for by you (as the employer), your employees, or a combination of both.

³ A 20% Multi-Life discount is based on gender-neutral rates and requires at least three employees with a common employer to purchase individual Disability Income insurance from Principal. Additional requirements may apply.

Provide more income protection to your key employees

Group short-term (STD) or long-term disability (LTD) insurance is a great start to providing income protection for your employees, but it may not be enough – especially for your highly compensated employees.

Assumptions: Group long-term disability insurance up to $10,000/month (up to $120,000/year) and 60% income replacement. Taxes are not taken into consideration. This is a hypothetical example and for illustrative purposes only.

Group & individual disability insurance work well together

Adding individual Disability Income (DI) insurance to a group long-term disability (LTD) insurance policy helps ensure your employees can replace more of their income if they become too sick or hurt to work. And that goes a long way in helping them pay everyday living expenses if the unexpected happens.

Chart based on $6,250 gross monthly income ($75,000 annual), with 60% group long-term disability program, assuming a 30% tax bracket for federal, state, and FICA. This is a hypothetical example and for illustration purposes only.
